HELPING NEIGHBORS IN NEED

LESSON TEXT — Luke 10:25-37; James 1:26, 27; 2:14-17; Matt. 25:31-46.

GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Being a Good Neighbor.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Being a Good Neighbor.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How to Be a Good Neighbor.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Modern Good Samaritan: Who Is He?

It is difficult to discover a thread of unity running through the texts selected by the lesson committee. The teacher should choose between them, making a study of the one best suited to the needs of the class. If the use of all the texts be desired, the teacher will be under the necessity of selecting the verses from each unit best suited to the needs of the class. Perhaps the nearest approach to unity of treatment of the texts in the light of the lesson subject would be the following:

I. Who is My Neighbor? (Luke 10:29, 30).

The parable of the Good Samaritan makes clear who is my neighbor and also what it means to be a neighbor. This destitute and wounded man left on the highway by the robbers, needed a neighbor. My neighbor there fore, is the one who needs my help—whether he lives next door or on the other side of the world.

II. What Being a Neighbor Means (Luke 10:31-37).

Our primary concern is not—who is my neighbor? but whose neighbor am I? Being a neighbor is:

1. To be on the lookout for those in need of help (v. 33).

2. To have compassion on the needy (v. 33).

Human need called forth Christ's compassion. All who possess His spirit will be likewise moved.

3. To give to those in need (v. 34). This means not only to give money but also to minister to the poor.

4. To bind up wounds (v. 34).

5. To set the helpless ones on our beasts while we walk (v. 34).

6. To bring to the inn and take care of the unfortunate (v. 34).

7. Genuine love is not spasmodic, but completes its service.

8. To give money (v. 35).

It costs much to be a neighbor. Love is the most expensive thing in the world. It cost God His only Son; It cost Christ His life.

III. The Test of Pure Religion (James 1:26, 27).

1. The tongue is bridled (v. 26). This means that those who have experienced Christ will speak with discretion.

2. Sympathizing with and helping those in need (v. 27).

The widow and orphan are the symbols of helplessness and need. Those who have true pity will visit such and render necessary aid.

3. Keep unspotted from the world (v. 27).

The one who has truly experienced the life from God will separate himself from the world.

IV. Judgment of the Nations (Matt 25:31-40).

It is difficult to see what bearing the text has upon subsequent responsibility as it is a picture of the Judgment which is to take place at the end of this age.

1. The Judge (v. 31).

He is the Son of Man who died to redeem the human race. He will then be clothed with majesty and power as, occupying His throne as Judge.

2. The time (v. 31).

It will take place when the Lord comes in His glory, accompanied with a retinue of glorious angels. It will take place after He has gathered the elect remnant of Israel.

3. The place (v. 31).

From Zechariah 14:1-5 we learn that it will be in or near Jerusalem. Since according to Luke 1:31-33, Christ is to sit upon the throne of His father David, we conclude that the place and the throne will be real.

4. The people judged (vv. 32-45).

They will be the living nations upon the earth after the translation of the church (1 Thess. 4:16, 17). They will be people unto whom the gospel of the kingdom shall be preached (Matt. 24:14). Those who preach this gospel will be Jews (Rev. 7 and Romans 11). They will be the brethren of the Lord in the flesh.

5. The issue of the Judgment (v 46).

(1) The sheep, Israel, shall enter upon their inheritance of the prepared kingdom.

(2) The goats, rejecters of Christ, go into everlasting fire prepared for the devil and his angels.

A Glowing Service

There is no greater or more glowing service in the world than that of recovering from the human refuse pile those who have been thrown there by a world's bitter condemnation, and giving to them that new hope that will "turn them from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God."

Beneath the Humblest Garb

Gentleness and a kind heart are often found beneath the humblest garb.

SPELLS OF BACKACHE

"I have used Cardui at intervals for sixteen years, when I suffered from backaches, and it always helped me," says Mrs. J. W. Albright, R.F.D. 2, Troy, Ala. "Mostly I was afflicted with bad spells of backache. At times I felt as if my back would break. I would drag one foot after the other, in a helpless sort of a way, and once I got down in bed. My husband urged me to take Cardui. I soon found what a fine medicine it really was.

"When my second child was little, I was in very bad health. I did not pick up as I should have. I was weak and sickly. I do not believe that I would have come through, but for Cardui."

"We Never Misrepresent"

What Every Father Knows

I can see the day approaching
When my boy will be encroaching
On a lot of my possessions
That I value rather high.
Now, of course, just this morning
I detected him adorning
His delightful little person
With my best four-dollar tie!

But, perhaps I ought to mention
I have paid but small attention
To the clothes that he's been wearing.
For, his mother tends to that.
But, from what I saw today, Sir,
I had better start to pay, Sir,
Some attention, or I am likely
Pretty soon to miss my hat!

And as he keep[illegible]n-a-growin',
He will more of[illegible]abe showin'—
He'll bedeck himself, I reckon,
With the best I ever wore!
He will swipe my sox and collars,
And the shirt that cost five dollars,
And as unconcerned as Moses
He'll go struttin' out the door!

But I'm glad, with them to share 'em—
I will gladly let him wear 'em!
But there'll still be one possession
To which I shall hold the key!
I will share with him my riches—
But he'll never wear my britches,
For the way the rascal's growin'
He'll be twice the size of me!

BARN OPENING

Cynbaren Farms Stage A Royal Good Time on Appomattox River

LastSaturday by invitation quite a number of our citizens went through storm to celebrate with Mr. Warren S. Cornell the opening of his handsome and well-equipped new stock barn, just completed on Cynbaren Farms, dow non the Appomattox river.

Among guests present from town we mention the following: Dr. Twyman, Ben Caldwell, Dick and Jerry Burke, Agent Mcmahon, Justice Doyle, Penrose Woolfolk, Strode Burks and Willie Carter and a great number of his neighbors.

Barn fires were laid, refreshments were served and jokes amusing to the horses were related, all of which carried a heavy coat of hair. There were no Volstead refreshments although the party had every indication of some side dishes.

Mrs. Corning was a most gracious hostess and was held in the reception line, for some time, as the jolly crowd shook her hand in old Virginia style.

Decorations at the barn were gorgeous and beautiful and displayed the taste of an artist.

Mr. Corning will have another some day, it is hoped by all who were fortunate enough to be present on this unique frolic.

Sanitation Campaign in Appomattox

Mr. George L. MacKay, Field Representative of the State Department of Health in the Sanitation Campaign was in Appomattox County on November 13 and 14, 1929. Mr. MacKay came to Appomattox with the view of furthering the continued organization of the Sanitation Education Campaign in the county. Mr. MacKay states that here, as in all other counties of the state, our people have been most interested and ready to cooperate in this great movement.

The object of the Sanitation Education program is to rid Virginia in the next few years of the main filth-borne diseases—typhoid, dysentery, diarrhea and infantile paralysis. There have been 271 cases of infantile paralysis, alone, in the state this year. Every one knows what this dreaded disease does to children. Infantile paralysis is a disease which is caused by a virus that may be in the secretions of the nose and throat and may be in the excretions from the intestines. Labratory experiments have shown that the disease can be transmitted either way; but since it is far more prevalent in warm weather than in cold, we classify it principally as a disease of the typhoid class.

And every indication points to the conclusion that it is spread chiefly by the same conditions as typhoid, diarrhea, dysentery and intestinal parasite, that is, namely (1) unsafe sewage disposal; (2) unsafe drinking water; (3) homes not properly screened; (4) insufficient fly control.

There are very few homes in the State that are 100% right in the four points named. But no citizen, no child, will be really safe in the home from these so called "filth-borne diseases" until these points are fully understood and made right.

Appomattox county knows that it is well to be cautious and it will carry on the work with ernestness and zeal before another fly season is upon us—another typhoid, dysentery, diarrhea, and infantile paralysis season.

THE BREAD OF LIFE

Breads and biscuits made from self-rising flour contain more of the essentials of the balanced diet than bread made of any other flour. This is proved by a recent experiment conducted by the National Soft Wheat Millers Association.

Sixty per cent of the experimental diet was bread—self-rising flour biscuits made with water, self-rising flour biscuits made with whole milk; and on down in the following order: commercial white bread, yeast bread made with whole milk, commercial whole wheat bread, and yeast bread made with water.

The balanced diet demands three main elements: the right kind of proteins, vitamins A to F, and certain minerals. Of the minerals, the following five are necessary: sodium, calcium, phosphorous, sulphur, potassium, magnesium, iron, iodine and chlorine.

Three of them, sodium, calcium and phosphorus, are introduced into soft wheat by the millers at the time of milling. The resultant flour, self-rising flour, therefore, contains these three important mineral agents for bone development and growth, in far greater proportion than other flours in commercial use.

STUDY ENVIRONMENT OF U. S. CHILDREN

Nation-Wide Inquiry Is Sponsored by President.

Washington.—A nation-wide inquiry into the physical and social environment of the American child is moving forward. Permanent headquarters for a secretariat have been opened in the Interior department and 24 prominent educators, physicians, and sociologists have agreed to direct various phases of the investigation, which was sponsored by President Hoover.

Organization of the working forces to place the American child under a microscope, determine his ills, and recommend means of curing them have been completed. The group of public men chosen to make the survey immediately will begin collecting data. Fully 18 months, they predict, will be so spent.

General Meeting to Be Held.

With the study completed, a general conference of the committeemen will be called in Washington to consider conditions as they have found them and decide what may be done to improve them.

The investigation, announced by President Hoover at a White House conference some months ago, was made possible by a gift of $500,000 by some of the President's friends. He declined to name them.

A complete picture of the American child and his environment will be painted by the investigators, who will turn the spotlight of science into the home and school in their search for facts. Public health organization, medical service for children, the family and parent education, vocational guidance, parental and maternal care —these are some of the subjects assigned to the study committee.

The Handicapped Child.

The handicapped child, including both the physically and mentally abnormal, will be the subject of a particularly diligent study. Four committees will work in this field. One will survey state and local organization for the handicapped, another the physically and mentally handicapped child, yet another the child who is socially hampered by dependency, and finally, another will seek data on delinquent children.

A committee of 25 persons, including Secretaries of Interior Wilbur and of Labor Davis, was designated by Mr. Hoover to supervise the investigation.

RED CROSS EXPENDS EIGHT MILLIONS FOR RELIEF IN DISASTER

Year Just Closed Put Heavy Task on Society—120 Calls for Help Were Met.

An unusually large number of disasters in the United States and its insular possessions have required assistance from the American Red Cross during the year just closed. The organization sent emergency relief workers to the scenes of 120 tornadoes, floods, fires and other types of catastrophes and expended $8,020,000 in relief and rehabilitation of the victims.

Calls for aid came from eleven other nations in which earthquakes, floods and other problems caused distress to large populations, and the Red Cross sent $76,200 to help in relieving the suffering.

The catastrophe causing the great est loss of life and most widespread devastation was the West Indies hurricane of September, 1928, in which more than 2,000 lives were lost in Florida, Porto Rico and the Virgin Islands. A relief fund of $5,338,725.62 was contributed by the public, follow ing a proclamation by the President of the United States, to which the Red Cross added $50,000 from its own treasury, and the society was enabled to give relief to more than 700, 000 persons.

In the early Spring, river floods in the southeastern states cost a heavy loss to many persons, 76,000 families being affected in four states The Red Cross assisted 4,353 families, approximately 25,000 persons, with food, clothing, temporary housing, and specialized gambling in the United States each year, according to a survey made by Howard McLellan.

The sums handled by gamblers in either New York or Chicago far exceed those won and lost in the world's most famous center of legalized gambling, Monte Carlo, McLellan says. Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, New Orleans, Kansas City, St. Louis, Cleveland, Detroit, and Washington all close rivals of Monte Carlo in the volume of their gambling activities, he asserts.

McLellan's itemized tabulation of the nation's gambling bill is as follows:

Baseball pools, $500,000,000; policy games (lotteries based on daily totals of bank clearings or other daily figures), $900,000,000; race track betting, $1,000,000,000; handbook betting on races, $800,000,000; cards, dice and similar games of chance, $1,000,000,000; bucketshops, $500,000,000.

The figures, arrived at through an examination of common testimony in local gambling investigations, a study of income tax figures, court records, books of the leading race tracks, and other authoritative sources, represent an underestimate, since they exclude many minor gambling activities, McLellan states.

Woman Spends Night in Capital Monument

Washington.—Mrs. S. E. Longbell, forty, of Middleburgh, Vt., is the first among nearly 10,000,000 visitors to the Washington monument to spend the night in it.

It was an oversight on the part of the guards that permitted her to be locked in the great obelisk for the night. Authorities believe she purposely secreted herself in the shaft when the door was closed at night The story did not leak out until later

Mrs. Longwell went to the monument fortified by a lunch and a thermos bottle full of tea. Authorities think she wanted to see the moonlight and the sun rise from the top of the monument.

The guards promise this stunt will never be repeated. Hereafter they will move any furniture behind which a person might hide. It has been a sort of unwritten law that no visitor should be permitted to remain in the monument after the closing hour, primarily for the protection of visitors.

Made Insane by Loss of $100,000 Won in Lottery

Reading.—With a lottery prize of $100,000 in his pocket, Bruno Wellman thought he need not bother to work for the rest of his life.

Wellmann was the owner of a cafe until he won the big prize in the Saxon State lottery. He immediately made his nephew proprietor of his cafe, bought a villa and prepared with the interest on the rest of his money to spend his days in dignified ease. But the next day the bank in which he had deposited his winnings went into bankruptcy. Wellmann is now in an insane asylum.

INVENTS OXYGEN VEST FOR PILOTS

Will Protect Aviators in Water Accidents.

Washington.—A new oxygen-breathing device has just been perfected here, intended to prevent the drowning of aviators trapped by seaplanes that crash in the water, or caught under their parachutes after a jump that brings them down into a river or the sea. It is the joint work of Chief Gunner C. L. Thisala, well known for his inventions of submarine safety devices, and Frank H. Hobson of the naval bureau of construction and repairs. As yet it has received no official name, but is provisionally called the seaplane rescue safety vest.

Mr. Thisala describes the new contrivance as "a sort of combined vest and belt, equipped with two long pieces of rubber hose through one of which the wearer inhales and through the other exhales; a nose clamp to prevent the sudden rush of water from suffocating him; a tiny canister containing soda lime, which serves to purify the breath while eliminating carbon dioxide, and a bottle containing sufficient oxygen to keep a man afloat at least half an hour after he has jumped into the water from his plane. However, if it so happens that the fiver has not had a chance to use his parachute and is thrown into the water while in the plane, he can readily gain access to a larger bottle always carried as an emergency measure in the ship. This will supply a human being for about an hour and a half."

NURSES ENROLLED WITH RED CROSS FOR SERVICE

Enrolled with the Nursing Service of the American Red Cross at Washington are 49,000 nurses, qualified under the society's regulations, who may be summoned to service in time of disaster or other emergency. From the Red Cross enrollment were assigned 20,000 nurses in the World War. These Red Cross nurses are the standing reserve of the Army and Navy Nurse Corps of the United States, and are also called upon for service in other governmental health services.

Little St. Eustatius Island in the Dutch West Indies gave refuge to American ships during the Revolution. The hurricane of last September struck the island, causing heavy loss. The American Red Cross was glad to send a small cash relief fund in remembrance of the historic friendship of the island folk for this republic.

Bearing Ill News

It is above all things strange to see how men bear ill news! Often the strongest till then become the weakest, while the weakest, as it were, reach up and steal strength from the gods.—Kipling.
